

MRI Statement on Research Integrity

The Moredun Research Institute is committed to the highest standards of research practice and scientific publishing, and upholds all commitments made under the Universities UK concordat to support research integrity.

The Moredun Research Institute expects all individuals performing research on its behalf, or using its facilities and resources, to uphold national and international standards of research and publishing integrity and follow best practice guidelines issued by government, regulatory bodies, funders, publishers and learned societies, with particular reference to research and publication integrity in animal research (e.g. ARRIVE 2.0 <https://arriveguidelines.org/arrive-guidelines>) .

Research Integrity Group

The Research Integrity Group was established to:

- Promote and advise on best research practice to members of the Institute.
- Investigate allegations of research misconduct made against members of the Institute.
- To report possible instances of research misconduct by a member or affiliate of the Moredun Research Institute please email legal@moredun.ac.uk.

The Named Person for investigating allegations of research misconduct is Dr David Longbottom.

The Executive Member with responsibility for Research Integrity is Dr Tom McNeilly.

The Institute's Information Governance Officer is The Compliance Manager.

September 2022